THE SHOW MUST GO ON

BY: SCOTT NEWLIN

In case you haven't heard, we have a musical taking place this weekend: Friday, April 1st at 7:00 pm, Saturday April 2nd at 2:00 pm and 7:00 pm, and Sunday April 3rd at 2:00 pm. The musical this year is an all time classic, Annie. With an exciting soundtrack and very energetic cast the show will be worth the price of admission!

Now in shocking news the original actor who was slated to play Annie, sixth grader Noelle Dixon, was grounded after singing too loudly at home! This means the director of the show had to call on the understudy for Annie, none other than yours truly writing this article Scott Newlin. Am I nervous? No not at all. Do I think I will steal the show? Obviously. Do I think Noelle's punishment is a little too harsh? Yes of course. Will I let her down? No way. I have been paying attention to her genius and feel prepared. Plus I have the voice of an angel. So when Mr. Langjahr called on me to take on this challenge, I decided to channel my inner Efron and get my head in the game. Even Baker the dog has given me a bark of encouragement! So make sure you make it out to see my performance of a lifetime as Annie, in Monroe's production this weekend. Oh the rest of the cast will be there too!

Door Decorating Madness

BY: ELLA SCHWAB

The middle of March set off the official start of the March Madness basketball tournament. The Hornets decided to join in and have some fun with it. Each Hornet Time got two teams randomly selected for them and used those teams to decorate their door. The rubric required the classes to incorporate team spirit, creativity, neatness, quotes, inspiration, and teamwork. This activity incorporates both fun and competition within the building. Filling out a class bracket is another activity happening among Hornet Times. Mrs. Frye's Hornet Time came in first for the door contest, winning a pizza party. Mrs. Norsworthy's and Mrs. Green's Hornet Time's tied for second place earning a donut party. Next week, after the final game, we will find out what Hornet Time won the bracket contest!

Reporting Live from Journalism Class

BY: ANDREW SHARP

One of the classes offered here at Monroe is Journalism. Journalism is taught by Mrs. Frye, currently in 1st and 8th period. Usually a journalism class would consist of note taking and learning about different styles of writing. However, this semester Mrs. Frye decided to take a unique approach and have her students do real journalistic activities. She has two options for students to choose to express their creativity. First is the weekly newsletter. Students are assigned a section in the newsletter to write. Articles are written early each week and then edited by other students later in the week. The students also help layout the entire newsletter, get the pictures, and come up with ideas. The second option is the Top Five in the Hive podcast. This is a podcast where students interview a person of their choosing and talk about a top 5 list. The purpose of the podcast is to give students in the high school the opportunity to learn more about each other and their teachers. Top 5 topics range from "outdoor activities" to "what you should know about being a multicultural student".

Students are also required to complete one current event assignment when they are not working on the publications of the weekly newsletter or podcast. Together as a class we have worked out all of the details for these two projects and have seen our ideas become reality. The class this year is 10th-12th graders, but next year will be only 11th and 12th graders. It is still a work in progress, but Mrs. Frye is excited about what we have accomplished so far!

BEHIND THE SCENES OF ANNIE

with Spencer Campbell

BY: BEN MISCHLER

Senior Spencer Campbell is newer to theater in comparison to many of his peers. He just got involved in this extracurricular and Thespian Troupe 1709 this year. However that hasn't stopped him from taking on the important role of stage manager for the spring musical, Annie. He is co-managing with fellow senior, Torrance Johnson and a few others. Before senior year, his only experience in theater was in second grade! The job of stage manager requires them to set all the props and make sure everything is ready to go. The days for all cast and crew are very long, especially this week before the show actually airs. Spencer and the other managers are putting in a good seven hours a day after school because the managers are the last to leave. He states that the hardest part of the job is keeping up with everything because things move so quickly as well as improvising when things go wrong. However, the good outweighs the bad. Not only is Spencer managing the show, but he also has a small part where he plays the role of Judge Brandeis. He is really excited for this scene because he gets to do whatever he wants, and he wants to be super annoying and ridiculous. Over all, seeing the show come together and all of the cast's and crew's hard work pay off is has been awesome. The feeling is bittersweet for Spencer though because although this is only his second show at MHS, it is also his last show. As happy as he is to have found something he loves to do, it's also a bummer because he wishes he would have started sooner. He will really miss the cast and crew after the final curtain drops.

Club Highlight:

Thespian Troupe 1709

BY: HANNAH JORDAN

The Monroe's Thespian Troupe is a great club to join if you're interested in theater, acting, and having fun! This club does a bunch of fun activities like watch parties, and go out and see shows as well. Monroe's Thespian Troupe also organizes the candy gram fundraisers that take place several times throughout the school year. They do multiple other fundraisers throughout the year, the most recent one being the St. Patrick's day one.

For the St. Patrick's day fundraiser, they sold paper bags with mystery items inside of them. You could get prizes like t-shirts or snacks, and the grand prizes were tickets to the Annie musical! The mystery item bags cost a dollar and they quickly sold out.

Every school year, the Monroe Thespian Troupe has an induction ceremony where people can be brought into the troupe, which will take place during April this school year. So if you are interested in joining the Troupe 1709, you should definitely reach out to Mrs. Norsworthy.

Creative Corner:

Cameron Compan

BY: JACKSON FIELDS

Cameron Compan, a senior here at Monroe High School, has a wide array of interest. Many of these interests are in the creative arts. He likes classes such as history, creative writing, and animation and robotics. However, he hasn't taken many classes regular classes this year, since he's gotten most of them done so he has really just taken study halls. In his free time, he likes to write stories and poems. These stories and poems mainly depend on the weather for a point of mood. He really dives into the details and the mood of the stories. He also likes to play video games and build things. One of his passions is 3d printing. Cameron got into 3d printing back in 2019. He was able to work with a 3d printer, a Creative Ender 3v2. The best thing about 3d printing, he says, is that you have the free will to make anything. To see your idea become a reality. Next year, after graduation, Cameron will be attending Butler Tech for precision machinery.
